ERD Tender Course

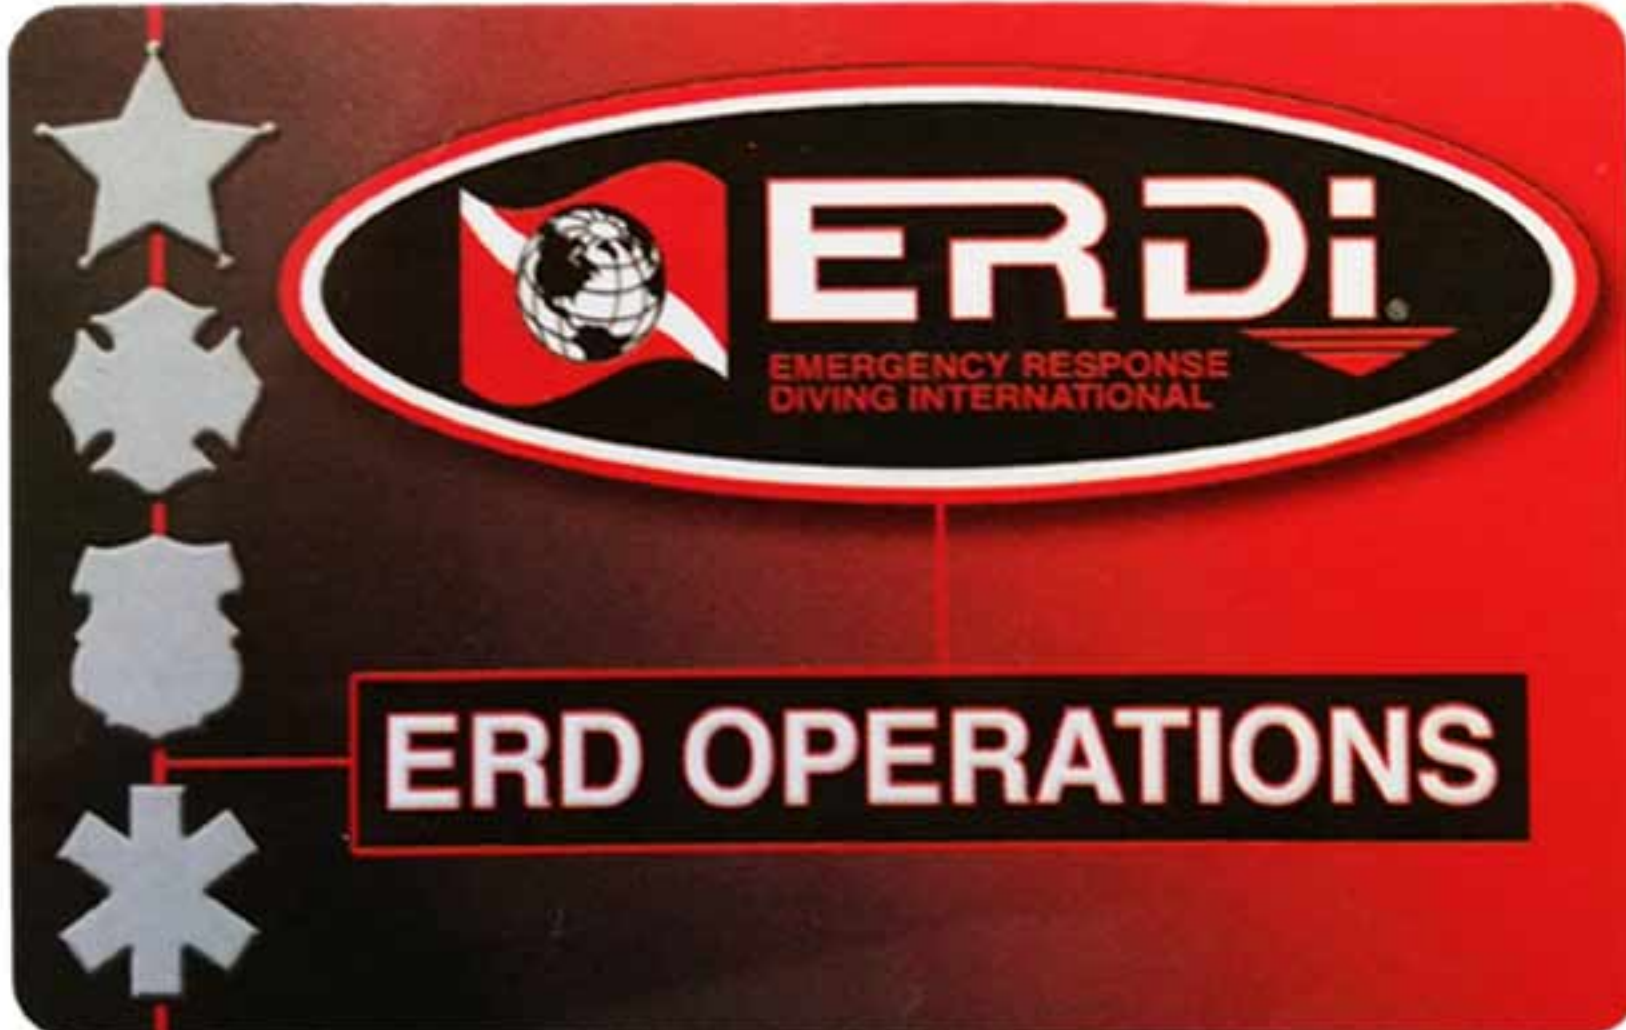

A complete guide to tender operations in a public safety diving role

The ERD Tender course trains team personnel to properly tend line, effectively communicate, and perform a crucial non-diving role within a public safety dive team. The ERD Tender is instrumental to the successful completion of a mission.

ERD Tender Course

Who this course is for:

- Any public safety professional who would like to participate in public safety diving operations in a non-diving role
- Any public safety dive professional that has not been formally trained on proper diver tending

What you can expect to learn:

- How to efficiently structure and operate a team
- Effective communication through line signals and electronic communication systems
- Diver safety: calculating air consumption rates, choosing the right diver for onsite conditions
- Site mapping and proper documentation
- Scene evaluation

ERD Tender students should expect to take a lot of notes and spend time analyzing outcomes of practical sessions, to prepare for their next callout. Students will learn and master tending skills in both confined and open water settings. ERD Tender students will also learn to choose proper personal protective equipment (PPE), become well acquainted with PPE, crime scene recognition, various search patterns, and decontamination procedures.

What's in it for you and your team: Reinforcing training to better prepare you and your team to handle any scenario.

ERD Tender Technician level minimum requirements:

- Successfully complete 200 metre swim, 100 metre buddy tow with PFD, 10 minute survival float
- Demonstrate mastery of line signals, and tether communications
- Perform at least two search patterns

ERD Tender Course

Why a Team of Three:

The optimum team structure is four, but this is not always feasible or possible. ERDI standards require a minimum team structure of three. With a team of three you can have: one diver, back-up diver (diver at 90) and a tender/supervisor. What qualifies as a team of three for this special: a team of three members of the same department or team. Divers from different municipalities, departments or teams cannot form a team for the purposes of this special pricing.
